| ● law of tort | ● carelessness | ● tort | ● damages |
| ● duty of care | ● committed | ● to sue | ● grounds |
| ● allegations | ● negligence | ● no win no fee | ● breach |

The law of tort says that everyone has a civil duty to be careful and not to hurt or harm another person. Lawyers call this civil duty 'the duty of care'. Sometimes people breach this duty of care. To breach means to break. Very often they breach the duty of care by accident but sometimes they do it deliberately. If someone hurts or harms another person because of a breach, we call this harmful action a tort. This means that some things that might be criminal in your legal system are a tort in England and the USA.

Look at the list of harmful actions below. In England and the USA they are usually torts.

- Leaving the floor of a shop in a dangerous condition so that a customer falls and hurts her leg.
- Saying something that is bad about someone, which isn't true.
- Writing a negative story in a newspaper about someone, which isn't true.
- Playing loud music late every night, which disturbs your neighbours.

This area of law is easier to understand by thinking of a tort as being a type of civil wrong. Each of the torts listed above has a special name. The tort that happens most often is called negligence.

Negligence is when someone is not careful enough and this person's carelessness hurts another person as a result. The person who is hurt is called the injured person.

When someone hurts you as a result of his or her actions, you need to consult a lawyer who specialises in the right area of tort. The lawyer will try to get you money from the careless person. This money is called 'compensation' or, more correctly, 'damages'. Sometimes the lawyers can't agree on the amount of damages. When this happens, the injured person may decide to sue the person who has hurt them. Suing someone is a more informal way of saying starting proceedings against someone in a civil court. The claim form will state the claimant's allegations against the defendant. An allegation is like an accusation. The claimant is stating that something happened, but the defendant has the opportunity to say that this is not true. The reasons for going to court are called 'the grounds'. The grounds for an action in tort are that the defendant committed a tort.

Sometimes a lawyer who specialises in the tort of negligence makes an agreement with a client. The agreement is that if the client does not win the case then he or she does not have to pay for the lawyer's services. This is called a 'no win no fee' arrangement. It is allowed in the UK and the USA.
